EXPERIENCE

Richard joined Harrison-Hamnett, P.C. in 2003 after graduating from Penn State University. As a Project Engineer he analyzes, designs and coordinates construction for all types of facilities, managing each project from conception through project completion.

While Richard has worked on commercial, industrial and educational facilities, he has developed a niche in the high-end residential category, successfully working on several homes in Nantucket, Massachusetts. He also specializes in pre-engineered building foundations and has worked on apartment complexes and mixed retail buildings.
